Complains to Manager of Hotel About "Lack of Privacy"

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—President Roosevelt has taken note of the flare-up over allegations that Justice Hugo L. Black belongs to the Ku Klux Klan by declaring he received no such information from any source before appointing the Alabama senator to the supreme court.

The President told his press conference last yesterday he did not know whether the justice department had investigated Black's qualifications.

"No Further Comment"
Until the new justice returns from his European vacation, Mr. Roosevelt said, "there is no further comment to be made."

Justice Black himself refused in London to discuss the allegations. He left by auto for a trip into the English countryside after complaining to the manager of his hotel about "lack of privacy."

The revival of charges that Black holds life membership in the Klan prompted Mr. Roosevelt to issue a formal statement at his semi-weekly meeting with reporters.

"I only know what I have read in the newspapers," the President read from a typed sheet of note paper. "I note that the stories about Justice Black are running serially, and their publication is incomplete."

"Mr. Justice Black is in Europe, where undoubtedly he cannot get the full text of these articles. Until such time as he returns, there is no further comment to be made."

At one point he smiled and interrupted his reading to comment that he had not said the stories were "running serially."

Declines to Answer
The President declined to answer a question as to whether he thought the senate had exercised its full responsibility in confirming Black's nomination last month. He described as an "if" question an inquiry about what would happen if it should develop that Black is a Klansman.

During senate debate over Black's nomination, Senator Borah (R-Iowa) said the Alabamian had declined in private conversation before his appointment was made—that he was a member of the Klan.

Refreshments were served during the social hour.
The next meeting will be held Nov. 9. The place has not been decided.

LISBON ENJOYS FAIR "HOLIDAY"

Business Suspends As Villagers Join With Visitors

LISBON, Sept. 15.—Business of all kinds suspended at noon today while hundreds of villagers joined the steady stream of visitors from other parts of the county intent on "doing" the fair.

Court house activities also stopped at noon to permit county employees to attend the annual event. The Lisbon Journal, local daily paper, gave the occasion an official holiday status by suspending publication for the day.

Nearly all entries were in proper place by Tuesday evening. Trucks roared into the town all Monday evening and a considerable part of Tuesday unloading horses, cattle, sheep, swine and other types of exhibits.

General exhibition and examinations by committee members started at 10 a. m. today and continued through the day. Harness racing started at 1:30 this afternoon, opening with 2:24 trot heats. The 2:19 pace and the 2:16 trot followed. Interspersing heats were circus acts by the United Circus performers.

This evening will be featured by a grand exhibition of horses and cattle in the ring, starting at 7 o'clock. A fireworks display will climax the night fair. Much the same program will be repeated Thursday.

A horse pulling contest opened the ceremonies this morning at 9 o'clock. Animals weighing 3,000 pounds and under were entered. Tomorrow heavy draft animals will compete for premiums.

ENGINEER'S PAY IS "IMPOUNDED"

No Checks To Be Issued
Until Controversy
Is Settled

LISBON, Sept. 15.—Until it is officially decided who gets the pay for serving as Columbiana county engineer, Robert S. Wheatley, Sallenville Democrat, will hold office here without being paid.

Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy, in an opinion received by Prosecutor Karl Stouffer this morning, upheld Auditor John Irwin's refusal to pay the engineer's salary until the state supreme court finally rules in the case.

Wheatley retained office recently when the state supreme court at Columbus stayed execution of the appellate court decision ousting him and reinstating his Republican predecessor, Lloyd C. Kirk, of Lisbon.

The attorney general's opinion today said that no pay should be issued until the case is out of litigation. The opinion further stated the auditor could regularly pay deputies and employees in the engineer's office.

Sawyer to Get Administration Backing,
Is Rumor

WEST DENIES HE'S AFTER ANY OFFICE

And Davey Has Nothing
To Say On Third
Term Prospects

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Sept. 15.—Question marks studded the backdrop today for the 1938 Ohio political campaign with the prospective leading actors silent as to the parts they might play.

With most of the speculation concentrated on the Democratic gubernatorial primary, these developments stood out:

The Ohio State Journal said that National Committeeman Charles Sawyer would be a candidate "with the backing of the Roosevelt administration."

"Nothing to Say"

Former Lieutenant Governor Sawyer, at his home in Cincinnati, said he had "nothing to say at this time," and Charles West, undersecretary of the interior and former 17th district representative to congress, said he was not a candidate for any office.

Whether Gov. Martin L. Davey would seek a third term had not been announced by the governor. He has been mentioned as a candidate either for re-nomination or for a senatorship.

The part that organized labor might take in a Davey-Sawyer contest held considerable interest among political observers.

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, already had called for the defeat of Davey if he were a candidate again. Criticizing the governor for using national guardsmen to support a "back to work" movement in the recent northeastern Ohio steel strike, Lewis called Davey a "steel puppet" who still is "governor of Ohio but not for long."

Owens May Run
The Ohio State Journal said that "rumors were current" that John Owens, CIO director for Ohio, might seek the Democratic nomination for governor.

It said further that if the state administration "trots out a labor candidate" as third man in the race, the Sawyer supporters said they had assurance the so-called "labor candidate" would be repudiated by organized labor forces.

West, former Denison university economics professor and more recently a contact man for President Roosevelt with congress, ran third with national administration support in the Democratic primary for the senatorial nomination won by Vic Donahey in 1934. Former Gov. George White was the other candidate.

West issued a statement in Washington last yesterday taking notice of reports he might run for governor and saying, "while I appreciate the complimentary expression embodied in these reports, I wish to make it perfectly clear that I am very much interested in the opportunities for public service in connection with my present position and that I have no thought whatsoever of becoming a candidate for any other office."

Sawyer said: "I have nothing to add beyond what I said upon my return from Europe last week. I said then I was pleased with the report of the 'draft Sawyer' movement by my friends but that it was too early to make a statement."

Sawyer's victory was a triumph for State Chairman David L. Lawrence, whose leadership was challenged by McArdle in announcing for the Democratic nomination.

Democrat Scully, Republican Waddell Nominated for Mayor

(By Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15.—A former college football coach will oppose Pittsburgh's present Democratic mayor in the November mayoralty race.

Both Mayor C. D. Scully and young Robert N. Waddell, Republican and former mentor at Carnegie Tech, rolled up huge majorities in Tuesday's "off-year" municipal primary.

Scully overcame the opposition of Council President P. J. McArdle, who campaigned as "labor's only candidate," and William N. McNair, the wisecracking, fiddle-playing ex-mayor.

Waddell, backed by the Republican organization and electioneering as "a new face and a new name," outdistanced the veteran William A. Magee, one-time mayor, who was supported by many leaders of the old guard.

Scully's victory was a triumph for State Chairman David L. Lawrence, whose leadership was challenged by McArdle in announcing for the Democratic nomination.

Shanghai Civic Center, Designed As Model for China, In Ruins

Street corner in Shanghai

Wreckage in residential district

(EDITOR'S NOTE: James A. Mills looked today at the ruins of hopeful China's magnificent Shanghai civic center in Kiangwan and saw therein "the fury, the futility and the fanaticism" of war. Here is his moving story.)

By JAMES A. MILLS.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—The majestic Shanghai civic center, costing $25,000,000 and the finest municipal plant in all the Orient, rose from Shanghai's ruins in 1932. Today it is a ruin itself.

I went out there today and looked at it.

Four weeks of incessant bombardment by Japanese planes, warships and artillery have converted the city hall, the library, the museum, the stadium and the hospital into charred and broken monuments to the fury, the futility and the fanaticism of war.

Educated In America
This great development was designed and built by American-educated Chinese architects and engineers. It was intended to serve as a model for the other cities of China. Neither Tokyo nor Nanking could boast such superb administrative and cultural buildings.

Today all these are black, mangled skeletons which appall the eye and sicken the heart.

Spain and Ethiopia have seen nothing like this. One has to go back to the ruined classical cities of France and Belgium of the World war—Rheims, Louvain, Liege—to find a parallel to the tragic sweep

Prosecutor Stouffer Reports Receipt of Information

A new clue in the murder of Roy "Happy" Marino, Youngstown gambler who was found slain last Friday morning near Rogers, appeared today when Prosecutor Karl T. Stouffer at Lisbon said he had information that Marino and three companions were seen in Salem at 10 p. m. Thursday.

In Front of Theater

Stouffer said the men were in an automobile in front of the State theater. He refused to give the source of his information, which traces Marino for one hour later than the last time he previously was known to have been seen, at 9 p. m. Thursday, when he left his girl companion at a restaurant in Youngstown.

State investigators, some of whom refused to be quoted, still insist today that they believe the identity of Marino's slayer is determined. Ed Schrecker, special prober, left Wheeling, W. Va., last night saying he "had a good idea" who the slayer was.

The investigators apparently have exhausted all theories except the one that Marino was killed because of his knowledge of lottery operations in the Youngstown district.

Although the family of Marino believes that his murder and that of his friend, Mike Russell, Wheeling lottery operator, are connected, hope of connecting them through ballistics faded today.

Bullet Not Recovered

Despite Attorney General Herbert Duffy's statement Monday that the bullet which killed Russell and Marino came from the same gun, Howard G. Robinson, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal investigation, declared today the bullet which killed Russell had not been recovered.

Youngstown police are awaiting developments from Cleveland regarding the Cleveland license plates reported seen on an automobile near the East End, Youngstown, restaurant where Marino left his girl companion the night before he was murdered.

Liverpool Native
Continues Gospel
Work With Indians

EAST LIVERPOOL, Sept. 15.—Numerous missionaries have been sent from the East Liverpool-Wellsville district within the last century but none perhaps served with more success and for a longer period than the Misses Mary M. and Elizabeth Crawford and their aunts, Misses Sue L. and Kate McBeth.

Gor 64 years the Crawford and McBeth sisters labored in the northern part of Idaho in an attempt to Christianize the Nez Perce tribe of Indians.

The four women have spent a total of 111 years in this line of endeavor. Three of them died in the service but one being left to continue the task of carrying the gospel to the red man.

Miss Mary M. Crawford, the only surviving member of the family of four missionaries, is now spending a two-month vacation with her sister, Mrs. Charles F. Bough of Glenmoor.

Although no longer head of the McBeth Mission, in Lapwai, Ida., Miss Crawford will return to the west about Oct. 15 to resume her work among the young people and the children on the reservation which numbers about 1,400 Indians.

OIL FOR TROUBLED WATERS

One of the vitally important characteristics of a submarine is its complete dependency on oil as a fuel. Battleships may and still do use coal, but without oil there can be no submarines.

The thought possibly is irrelevant to the momentous issues being handled in the world's troubled waters—the Mediterranean ocean—at the moment, but it would be interesting to know more about their relationship to oil.

Those "pirate" submarines which have enraged European powers so greatly are being operated with fuel oil. Today, fuel oil has been added to food, shelter and clothing as one of the necessities of life. Only a few governments control adequate supplies of oil; the owner of the "pirate" submarines isn't one of them.

How long can oil be kept out of the Mediterranean crisis when in even so relatively unimportant an action as Italy's invasion of Ethiopia oil was the first thing thought of when ways and means of controlling aggression were considered?

PUPIL MAKES GOOD!

In recording the affairs of a busy world this week, it will be impossible to find anything to surpass in interest the scheduled visit of Premier Mussolini to Chancellor Hitler.

This is to be Il Duce's first trip outside Italy since he came to power almost two decades ago. It is in return for Herr Hitler's visit to Rome in 1934.

Ah, much water has passed under the bridge since then. In 1934, Adolf Hitler was freshly equipped with power. He was a pupil of fascism, making a pilgrimage to the master. In 1937, he's a graduate scholar, and the master is his guest.

Berlin is going to put on a great show—everything in superlatives. Enough shoelace will be scuffed off by goose-stepping soldiers to make a leather belt that would reach from Berlin to Rome. Democracies will quiver in their constitutions as the dictators strut for each other's benefit.

There won't be an easy minute till Premier Mussolini's back in his office again, with his back to a blank, stone wall and Chancellor Hitler's able to tell his militant Nazi lieutenants that they did up everything brown.

It makes one think of a time, long ago, when Ramsay MacDonald, then prime minister of Great Britain, visited President Hoover, and the two of them sat on a log in a fishing camp and discussed ways and means of keeping the world out of war. How quaint!

EASY MONEY

It's no reflection on what the government's doing to say that its latest pronouncement on money policy isn't easy to follow. Money policy is never easy to follow.

It's clear, in a general way, though, that the federal reserve board, working with the treasury and the chief executive, is trying to supply plenty of credit. Easy money is the goal.

This is to be done by helping banks to accumulate larger reserves of cash. Not long ago, as recently as the beginning of summer, it was feared that banks had so much loose cash they might unintentionally cause inflation. At that time, steps were taken in the opposite direction to keep banks from accumulating too much cash. A managed economy must take care of such things.

For the first time in the country's history, its financial stability is the direct responsibility of the federal government, whose resources and authority supposedly are vast enough to prevent any untoward development. It remains to be seen whether or not they are. It remains to be seen, also, what will happen if they aren't—who will take the blame for the failure of a managed economy.

Will the government criticize itself for not stopping inflation or deflation in time, or are the banks going to have their chance to turn critics at last?

Here is a French seer who is certain that the world will come to an end early Monday afternoon, September 20. Memo to the composing room: Hold everything in readiness on that date for a quick replate of Page 1 when this news breaks.

Even Sweden is selling pork to this country in a big way. But never mind. The good old American hog will be on his way back after the next presidential election—traveling at a fast pace, too.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, September 16

The sidereal operations for this day may be interpreted as intriguing and perplexing, probably because certain elements of the subtle, undercover and mysterious seem to hold sway. Writings, both business and of private nature, assume this curious and mystifying aspect, but a clever and cautious manipulation of such subtleties may result in much satisfaction. Elders assist. In purely private relations, romance looms large, with abrupt and startling bids to high adventure.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unusual, subtle and intriguing adventures, with much occurring of a mysterious or baffling nature.

ture. Writings particularly partake of this curious portent, although if sagaciously handled many of these perplexing affairs may be turned to advantage. Elderly persons seem disposed to be of assistance.

A child born on this day may be deep, studious and dependable but, at the same time, adventurous, romantic, emotional, artistic and given to mystical matters or to occupations of an altruistic or modernistic trend.

O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Among Tad's most amusing cartoon drolleries were his Grooms and Joys, the sprightly, lugubrious little nippers who were always peeking out from some niche to herald woe or happiness. It was the solemn-faced Tad's conviction that the Joys eventually won the big breaks.

And a shining illustration of his thesis in the modern scene is Dale Carnegie. He has been the apostle of the Brighter Side. During the darkest days of the depression he was out lecturing that everything was going to be all right, yes sir. He fairly oozed optimism.

His Happy Jack philosophy became a foot-ball for the Grooms to kick around. He was the subject of many cartoon waggeries for his abundant cheerfulness. The revues heckled him for his outlook in song lyrics. But the smiling little man kept right on smiling.

And apparently he has grinned smack through. For today he is garnering enormous sums through his books, lectures and broadcasts. Some say his income for the current year will total a quarter million. He has two new books on the fire and an avalanche of lecture offers.

That recent movie, Artists and Models, provoked a cinema caper that brought the leading artists of America to the screen as actors. It happened this wise: Russell Patterson, who was working on it, had the idea that instead of having extras at the Artists Ball dressed as Rembrandt, Rubens, Raphael, etc., why not get some living artists on the set?

The outcome was that John La Gatta, Arthur William Brown, McClelland Barclay, Peter Arno and Rube Goldberg went to the coast and appeared in a scene with Jack Benny and Sandra Storme, England's most photographed model, all doing a drawing of her. They didn't make the boys dress like the old masters, although they framed them when they got there and made them believe for awhile they were to wear Prince Charming costumes, with laces and ruffles and such la de dah.

Rube Goldberg had a goofy scene with Benny that turned out so well every one advised him to get an agent. In fact, he did have two offers before leaving for New York. In the scene Benny says: "Hello, who are you?" Rube is supposed to say: "I'm Goldberg, Rube Goldberg." On the first take Rube looked blankly at him—he couldn't think of his name. Although it was not Rube's first acting experience. He used to do a vaudeville turn at Hammerstein's and over the Percy Williams circuit.

Autograph hunters are often pests to actors and actresses, but a strange reversal of form took place while the artists were making their scene. All the players, from stars to extras, cameramen, electricians and property boys were after the limners for autographs. One of Arthur William Brown's proudest possessions is a card of admittance reading: "Arthur William Brown, actor."

Employment agencies say the scantiness of domestic help is due largely that such help for families who live quietly and without show have been utterly spotted working for big salaried actors, singers and radio stars. Such employers are lavish in entertaining and not particular in the details of housekeeping. They entertain in a big way and there is an abundance of liquor and caviar left for the servants' hall that need not be accounted for. Too, it is the custom of guests at such functions to tip lavishly. Also employers of such employees make frequent trips for several weeks and leave servants to own devices. Such easy-going berths are naturally those domestics seek.

Bob Davis, just in from India and off again for Alaska, missed the first heavyweight championship since the Corbett-Fitzsimmons smack-up in 1897, when he failed to see the Farr-Louis set-to. Bob has watched all the gradations of the championship fights and he has come to the conclusion that they are just a mite too sissified for a red meat eater.

An old settler from Oklahoma, bucking standardization, was explaining his viewpoint to Gene Crawley. "If Nature had seen anything in the idea," he drawled, "he wouldn't have made hippos and giraffes, snakes and elephants and the like."

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

HOT, COLD BATHS

THERE IS considerable difference in the effect of hot and cold water upon the skin. Marked effects are produced when the water is either much hotter or much colder than the temperature of the body. For the daily bath the water temperature should be between 90 degrees and 100 degrees.

In taking a cold bath, there is a noticeable contraction of the tissues of the skin, followed by a feeling of stimulation and a warm glow over the entire body. If the cold bath is prolonged, the skin loses its tone, the body becomes blue and the skin is cold and clammy to the touch.

For this reason there is a limit to the length of time one should stay in a bath, whether it is hot or cold, but particularly if it is cold.

On getting out of the tub, rub the body briskly with a coarse towel to stimulate the circulation.

In taking a hot bath, one should be careful not to stay in it too long because the stimulation of the blood vessels produces a sense of relaxation and depression. This may be followed by faintness.

Baths With Salts

Hot baths to which salts have been added are used for various purposes. They may be recommended for the reduction of weight and sometimes merely because of their soothing effect. But whatever the purpose of the hot bath, you must be careful not to overdo it.

The kind of bath you take is determined by your personal tastes. Some prefer a cold shower in the morning, perhaps following a warm bath. Others may take a tepid bath at night. Taken just before retiring, this may prove to be very soothing. But even such a bath should not be prolonged; otherwise wakefulness will follow.

I cannot overstate the value of bathing. Good health is dependent upon a clean skin. In the summer time ocean bathing is found to be very stimulating. In many places the salt water may be enjoyed during the winter by reason of the excellent indoor swimming pools.

Lack of proper bathing leaves the skin rough and scaly and lessens proper elimination. Whether you use hot or cold water makes little difference. It is said by some that cold water aids in the oxidation of the starches and sugars, and that hot water aids in the oxidation of the proteins. Both hot and cold baths increase the "metabolism," that process by which our bodily balance is maintained.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss I. I. Q.—My complexion a year ago was nice and young looking—rosy cheeks, nice healthy lips—but now it has all faded away. While I am only 19 years old, I hate to see this happen. I use powder, no rouge and no lipstick. Please tell me what is the matter. What shall I do to have my youthful complexion back?

A.—Make every effort to improve your general health. Overcome any tendency toward faulty elimination. You should be out in the fresh air and sunshine as much as possible. Wash the face thoroughly several times a day. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

UNCLE ABNER SAYS:

Seems as if some fellers are allus busy writin' out laws outlawn' our rights.

I guess the police would like to ketch the fellar who said "it takes a thief to ketch a thief."

Mrs. L. B. Q.—I am losing my hair, particularly in front of the head. I am 30 years of age and seem to be in good health otherwise.

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. The condition of the hair and scalp is apt to reflect the condition of the general health.

Mrs. M. D. Q.—My husband is suffering with hemorrhoids. He seems to lose his strength and weight from them. Will you please tell me what to do?

A.—The patient should overcome any tendency toward faulty elimination. For further particulars restate your question and send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mrs. A. B. Q.—What would cause the tarter to gather or form on the teeth unusually fast? My dentist seems to think there is something wrong with the system but I have been reassured there is nothing organically wrong. However, I am inclined to be nervous.

A.—Watch the diet and elimination. Systematic care of the teeth is important. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Dr. Copeland is glad to answer inquiries from readers who send an addressed, stamped envelope with their questions. Address all letters to Dr. Copeland, New York City.

Hollywood Reviving Slapstick

Hollywood is reviving the art of slapstick. Success of such comedies as "It Happened One Night" and "Theodora Goes Wild" has prompted the film colony to go in for broad comedy. Constance Bennett and Mabel Normand have won new prestige for their clowning. Many of the first-rank stars, who formerly disdained such horseplay as made Mabel Normand and others famous in the days of Mack Sennett, are now seeking comedy roles and prospects for the coming season indicate that Hollywood will be wooing the comic muse with real ardor.

"Pirate" Sub on Ocean Floor?

Possible solution to the identity of "pirate" submarines which have been molesting Mediterranean shipping was seen in the report that one of the mysterious crafts was lying on the ocean floor off Cartagena, Spanish southern naval base. It was believed that the submarine was damaged by depth bombs dropped by government warships and was unable to rise to the surface. Identification of the craft would tend to confirm or refute Russian charges that the "pirate" submarines were Italian.

One of the vitally important characteristics of a submarine is its complete dependency on oil as a fuel. Battleships may and still do use coal, but without oil there can be no submarines.

The thought possibly is irrelevant to the momentous issues being handled in the world's troubled waters—the Mediterranean ocean—at the moment, but it would be interesting to know more about their relationship to oil.

Those "pirate" submarines which have enraged European powers so greatly are being operated with fuel oil. Today, fuel oil has been added to food, shelter and clothing as one of the necessities of life.
Only a few governments control adequate supplies of oil; the owner of the "pirate" submarines isn't one of them.

How long can oil be kept out of the Mediterranean crisis when in even so relatively unimportant an action as Italy's invasion of Ethiopia oil was the first thing thought of when ways and means of controlling aggression were considered?

PUPIL MAKES GOOD!

In recording the affairs of a busy world this week, it will be impossible to find anything to surpass in interest the scheduled visit of Premier Mussolini to Chancellor Hitler.

This is to be Il Duce's first trip outside Italy since he came to power almost two decades ago. It is in return for Herr Hitler's visit to Rome in 1934.

Ah, much water has passed under the bridge since then. In 1934, Adolf Hitler was freshly equipped with power. He was a pupil of fascism, making a pilgrimage to the master. In 1937, he's a graduate scholar, and the master is his guest.

Berlin is going to put on a great show—everything in superlatives. Enough shoeleather will be scuffed off by goose-stepping soldiers to make a leather belt that would reach from Berlin to Rome. Democracies will quiver in their constitutions as the dictators strut for each other's benefit.

There won't be an easy minute till Premier Musso-lini's back in his office again, with his back to a blank, stone wall and Chancellor Hitler's able to tell his militant Nazi lieutenants that they did up everything brown.

It makes one think of a time, long ago, when Ramsay MacDonald, then prime minister of Great Britain, visited President Hoover, and the two of them sat on a log in a fishing camp and discussed ways and means of keeping the world out of war.
How quaint!

EASY MONEY

It's no reflection on what the government's doing to say that its latest pronouncement on money policy isn't easy to follow. Money policy is never easy to follow.

It's clear, in a general way, though, that the federal reserve board, working with the treasury and the chief executive, is trying to supply plenty of credit.
Easy money is the goal.

This is to be done by helping banks to accumulate larger reserves of cash. Not long ago, as recently as the beginning of summer, it was feared that banks had so much loose cash they might unintentionally cause inflation. At that time, steps were taken in the opposite direction to keep banks from accumulating too much cash. A managed economy must take care of such things.

For the first time in the country's history, its financial stability is the direct responsibility of the federal government, whose resources and authority supposedly are vast enough to prevent any untoward development. It remains to be seen whether or not they are. It remains to be seen, also, what will happen if they aren't—who will take the blame for the failure of a managed economy.

Will the government criticize itself for not stopping inflation or deflation in time, or are the banks going to have their chance to turn critics at last?

Here is a French seer who is certain that the world will come to an end early Monday afternoon, September 20. Memo to the composing room: Hold everything in readiness on that date for a quick replate of Page 1 when this news breaks.

Even Sweden is selling pork to this country in a big way. But never mind. The good old American hog will be on his way back after the next Presidential election—traveling at a fast pace, too.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, September 16

The sidereal operations for this day may be interpreted as intriguing and perplexing, probably because certain elements of the subtle, undercover and mysterious seem to hold sway. Writings, both business and of private nature, assume this curious or mystifying aspect, but a clever and cautious manipulation of such subtleties may result in much satisfaction. Elders assist. In purely private relations, romance looms large, with abrupt and startling bids to high adventure.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unusual, subtle and intriguing adventures, with much occurring of a mysterious or baffling nature. Writings particularly partake of this curious portent, although if sagaciously handled many of these perplexing affairs may be turned to advantage.

Elderly persons seem disposed to be of assistance.

A child born on this day may be deep, studious and dependable but, at the same time, adventurous, romantic, emotional, artistic and given to mystical matters or to occupations of an altruistic or modernistic trend.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—Among Tad's most amusing cartoon droppings were his Glooms and Joys, the sprightly, lugubrious little nippers who were always peeking out from some niche to herald woe or happiness. It was the solemn-faced Tad's conviction that the Joys eventually won the big breaks.

And a shining illustration of his thesis in the modern scene is Dale Carnegie. He has been the apostheosis of the Brighter Side. During the darkest days of the depression he was out lecturing that everything was going to be all right, yes sir. He fairly oozed optimism.

His Happy Jack philosophy became a foot-ball for the Glooms to kick around. He was the subject of many cartoon waggeries for his abundant cheerfulness.
The revues heckled him for his outlook in song lyrics. But the smiling little man kept right on smiling.

And apparently he has grinned smack through.
For today he is garnering enormous sums through his books, lectures and broadcasts. Some say his income for the current year will total a quarter million.
He has two new books on the fire and an avalanche of lecture offers.

That recent movie, Artists and Models, provoked a cinema caper that brought the leading artists of America to the screen as actors. It happened this wise: Russell Patterson, who was working on it, had the idea that instead of having extras at the Artists Ball dressed as Rembrandt, Rubens, Raphael, etc., why not get some living artists on the set?

The outcome was that John La Gatta, Arthur William Brown, McClelland Barclay, Peter Arno and Rube Goldberg went to the coast and appeared in a scene with Jack Benny and Sandra Storme, England's most photographed model, all doing a drawing of her. They didn't make the boys dress like the old masters, although they framed them when they got there and made them believe for awhile they were to wear Prince Charming costumes, with laces and ruffles and such la de dah.

Rube Goldberg had a goofy scene with Benny that turned out so well every one advised him to get an agent. In fact, he did have two offers before leaving for New York. In the scene Benny says: "Hello, who are you?" Rube is supposed to say: "I'm Goldberg, Rube Goldberg." On the first take Rube looked blankly at him—he couldn't think of his name. Although it was not Rube's first acting experience. He used to do a vaudeville turn at Hammerstein's and over the Percy Williams circuit.

Autograph hunters are often pests to actors and actresses, but a strange reversal of form took place while the artists were making their scene. All the players, from stars to extras, cameramen, electricians and property boys were after the limners for autographs. One of Arthur William Brown's proudest possessions is a card of admittance reading: "Arthur William Brown, actor."

Employment agencies say the scantiness of domestic help is due largely that such help for families who live quietly and without show have been utterly spoiled working for big salaried actors, singers and radio stars. Such employers are lavish in entertaining and not particular in the details of housekeeping.
They entertain in a big way and there is an abundant of liquor and caviar left for the servants' hall that need not be accounted for. Too, it is the custom of guests at such functions to tip lavishly. Also employers of such employees make frequent trips for several weeks and leave servants to own devices. Such easy-going berths are naturally those domestics seek.

Bob Davis, just in from India and off again for Alaska, missed the first heavyweight championship since the Corbett-Fitzsimmons smack-up in 1897, when he failed to see the Farr-Louis set-to. Bob has watched all the gradations of the championship fights and he has come to the conclusion that they are just a mite too sissified for a red meat eater.

An old settler from Oklahoma, bucking standardization, was explaining his viewpoint to Gene Crawley. "If Nature had seen anything in the idea," he drawled, "he wouldn't have made hippos and giraffes, snakes and elephants and the like."

HEALTH

HOT, COLD BATHS

THERE is considerable difference in the effect of hot and cold water upon the skin. Marked effects are produced when the water feels either much hotter or much colder than the temperature of the body. For the daily bath the water temperature should be between 90 degrees and 100 degrees.

In taking a cold bath, there is a noticeable contraction of the tissues of the skin, followed by a feeling of stimulation and a warm glow over the entire body. If the cold bath is prolonged, the skin loses its tone, the body becomes blue and the skin is cold and clammy to the touch.

For this reason there is a limit to the length of time one should stay in a bath, whether it is hot or cold, but particularly if it is cold.

On getting out of the tub, rub the body briskly with a coarse towel to stimulate the circulation.
In taking a hot bath, one should be careful not to stay in it too long because the stimulation of the blood vessels produces a sense of relaxation and depression. This may be followed by faintness.

Baths With Salts

Hot baths to which salts have been added are used for various purposes. They may be recommended for the reduction of weight and sometimes merely because of their soothing effect. But whatever the purpose of the hot bath, you must be careful not to overdo it.

The kind of bath you take is determined by your personal tastes.
Some prefer a cold shower in the morning, perhaps following a warm bath. Others may take a tepid bath at night. Taken just before retiring, this may prove to be very soothing. But even such a bath should not be prolonged; otherwise wakefulness will follow.

I cannot overstate the value of bathing. Good health is dependent upon a clean skin. In the summer time ocean bathing is found to be very stimulating. In many places the salt water may be enjoyed during the winter by reason of the excellent indoor swimming pools.

Lack of proper bathing leaves the skin rough and scaly and lessens proper elimination. Whether you use hot or cold water makes little difference. It is said by some that cold water aids in the oxidation of the starches and sugars, and that hot water aids in the oxidation of the proteins. Both hot and cold baths increase the "metabolism," that process by which our bodily balance is maintained.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat

Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, spicy or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or overworked, your stomach may not do its job.
Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, cramps and constipation.
You feel sour sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach trouble. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes time to make the organs contract and relax, so these doctors in 3 minutes and get you back in your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and safe. The package proves it. Ask for Bilex for indigestion. Sold everywhere. (a) Bilex Co. 1937.

Hollywood Reviving Slapstick

Hollywood is reviving the art of slapstick. Success of such comedies as "It Happened One Night" and "Theodora Goes Wild" has prompted the film colony to go in for broad comedy. Carole Lombard and Constance Bennett have won new prestige for their clowning. Many of the first-rank stars, who formerly dined such horseplay as made Mabel Normand and others famous in the days of Mack Sennett, are now seeking comedy roles and prospects for the coming season indicate that Hollywood will be wooing the comic muse with real ardor.

"Pirate" Sub on Ocean Floor?

Possible solution to the identity of "pirate" submarines which have been molesting Mediterranean shipping was seen in the report that one of the mysterious crafts was lying on the ocean floor off Cartagena, Spanish southern naval base. Identification of the craft would tend to confirm or refute Russian charges that the "pirate" submarines were Italian.

"THE CAPTIVE BRIDE"

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER XLVI

"The snow is so deep and it has been here so long, it doesn't seem possible that the earth can ever be green again," Denny said, with unconscious selfishness.

Rev's eyes took on the soft, blue light she never could place. "That's only because you are of the South, Denise. You'll see how the North bursts into bloom on the heels of the snow. Not even California has so many wild flowers. The biggest, bluest forget-me-nots in the world; purple daisies with hearts of gold; briar roses; dogtooth lilies. But the largest of all, I think, are the sakatoons that line the river banks in June. They are masses of creamy waxy clusters as fragrant as—"

Well, they remind you of something you can't quite remember. Something exquisite that has to do with lilacs and apple blossoms and youth—like the perfume you use, Denny."

She listened to him tell of the North springing into life after its winter sleep and involuntarily warmed to the picture he painted; to the sight, the feel, the perfume of it. "Something exquisite you can't quite remember," the fellow had said. He was saying things in the manner of one sharing delight with a sympathetic friend until, against her will, she was beguiled into a pleasant sense of intimacy.

The spell was broken when a live coal suddenly snapped onto the rug. As he hastily bent to flip it back into the grate, the small leather photograph folder slipped from his breast pocket and fell open almost at her feet. But before she could catch a glimpse of its contents, he had lunged swiftly, snatched it up and thrust it back.

He gave her a keen glance, seemed about to speak; and then, realizing that the coal was burning a hole in the rug, quickly attended to removing it. It was the first time she had ever seen him at all disconcerted.

He immediately resumed his interrupted story; but his jealous guarding of that other woman's face had aroused all Denny's old antagonism. Though she tried to give no outward sign of this, he was quick to divine the change in her.

"I won't bore you with any more of this, Denny," he concluded. "Anyway, after the river breaks, you'll be seeing it all for yourself."

"After the river breaks, Captain, I shall be leaving by the first boat, whether it be yours or Captain Page's."

The quiet certainty of her statement had an unusually sobering effect on him. After a reflective pause he said, "Denny, tell me honestly, has River House—has this country—no hold on you at all? Do you still hate it, and me, as much as you did at the beginning of the winter?"

The memory of the way he had so easily defeated her at every turn suddenly rushed over Denny and lent a precise sincerity to her words. "Hate you? The feeling is hardly so personal, Captain. Say, rather, that I have an intense and constantly growing aversion for you and for your country. My one thought, now and always, is to get away from you; get a divorce from you; and then forget this crude river land and everything in it. I hope you understand me at last."

"Understand you? I'm afraid—I do."

She waited for him to go on, but he stood silent and abstracted, gazing into the fire.

Denny rose and said good night. She was halfway to the door when he called to her and came to where she had paused. "White Water," he said gently, taking one of her hands between both of his. "I see I've been mistaken in you. Be as happy as you can now, until the break-up. After that, I'll make everything easy for you." He was looking down at her with an odd smile, but something of buoyancy, something young and brilliant, seemed to have gone out of him.

Denny thought, "He realizes he cannot break my spirit. He knows, at last, that I've beaten him at his own game and he's accepted his defeat." Aloud she said rather hastily as she withdrew her hand, "Thank you. And again—good night."

She went upstairs to her sitting room, but instead of turning on the lights and preparing for bed, she stood staring at the dark square of the window, seeing Bourne's face and hearing his voice as he said, "Be as happy as you can.... I'll make everything easy for you."

Strangely enough, she felt none of the elation that should have been hers, but rather as if a resisting force against which she had been thrusting with all her might had abruptly given way, letting her down. Now that she was sure their association was nearing an end, she even began to feel a faint contrition because of the way in which she played her part all winter. "I must have seemed awfully sulen and disagreeable," she thought. "I wish I had been a better sport about it." Then, as if this savored of concession, she added, "It would have made my victory more—satisfying."

She sent her mind ahead to the time when she would no longer be bound by legal ties to Revelry Bourne. Freedom! How sweet it would be—how wonderful!

She kept repeating this to herself, but for some reason was not convinced either of the sweetness or the wonder of it. Now, in the hour of her triumph, a voice at the back of her consciousness seemed to be whispering something that filled her with a sense of failure and impending loss. But what was she losing? Nothing but this river land which she had just told Revelry Bourne she wanted to forget.

Of course, that was not strictly true. She did have an interest in her father's country.

Could it be that she was going to miss the stimulus of her feud with Revelry Bourne?

The idea at first seemed so ridiculous that she almost laughed out loud. Yet—he had been a picturesque and exciting antagonist; and the only person in the house who had not bored her during the long months. She wished suddenly that they might part friends.

"And why shouldn't we?" she asked herself. "Why shouldn't I be frank with him, for once, and go back downstairs and tell him I really want to keep in touch with the river country—and him—after I'm gone?"

She toyed with the idea a moment; then impulsively acting on it, she went, almost light-heartedly, out into the hall and down the stairway.

When she reached a spot where it was possible to lean over the banister and look into the living room, she paused and did so, to see if he were still there.

He was standing very close to Mrs. Rio Carew, his hands on her shoulders, smiling down into her upturned face.

May. The long, warm days wrought changes of mystic beauty in the land, and Denny felt a pagan-like response, a radiant energy, which no mental problem could dim. The country stirred her as never before with its prophecy of something pleasant, something wondrous to come.

But what? When? Denny was asking herself these questions one late afternoon, as she stood on the terrace looking out over the valley.

Resurgent life was everywhere—in the steaming earth; the lambent air; the melting streams. Everywhere, save in the Stikine itself, which lay ice-mantled and apparently unchanged in the greening world.

Yet it was the frozen river that was still the most potent, dominating thing in all this northern land. From it emanated the mightiest promise. Something impending; something coming.

She, and every other human being in Tarnigan, watched it and waited upon it, tense with a sort of buoyant suspense.

At Lonerwater, the Maid's crew was getting the river boat ready to launch as soon as the ice went out. Later in the evening the Commander dropped in at River House in time for after-dinner coffee.

After retelling several small items of local news he said, "Captain Page radioed the storekeeper today, asking how the river looked up here. Forehanded blighter, Page. He's got the Taku Wind tied up at Wrangell, waiting to poke his nose up the Stikine the first chance he gets."

Bourne nodded. "He's been there over a week—ever since the first of May. The ice went out of the mouth of the river yesterday."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

BARGAINS GALORE THIS WEEK END — at — SKORMAN'S

Their conversation was interrupted by the Commander being called away to attend one of his flock who was ill.

In the midst of the general stir occasioned by his good-by, the missionary turned to Van Cleve and, with a hint of pleading in his voice, asked, "You wouldn't care to rally round for an inspection of the little fellow, Doctor? Wouldn't take you but half an hour."

Van Cleve emphatically shook his head.

Shortly after the Commander's departure, the doctor went upstairs, looking so unusually gloomy that Denny's thoughts followed him. All during the winter he had been ready to advise the missionary as to the treatment of any of his ailing flock, but he had steadfastly refused to accompany him on his sick calls. This refusal to contact the sick, so at variance with his conduct when he first came to Tarnigan, had impressed Denny as rather selfish and unfeeling. She didn't like to admit such traits in Van, who was, she told herself, her kind of person, and the only one of her kind at River House.

This she felt to be especially true since that night she had unwittingly discovered Rio and Bourne together in the living room. Her subsequent avoidance of the pair had thrown her more than ever in the company of Van Cleve.

Now that the snow was gone, they had fallen into the habit of riding together each day through the forests. She had found Van a delightful and potent means of warding off depressing thoughts.

He seemed younger these days, and quite ready to laugh with her at incidents of the winter now past. His good looks, his mordant wit, his thoroughly sophisticated comments on Tarnigan in general, were piquant and stimulating.

She was aware, also, that Van's reaction was due not so much to their springtime surroundings as to herself.

As always, when she was alone, her thoughts returned to Rio and Revelry Bourne. Her first blind anger against them had, with the passage of weeks, given way to a sense of hurt and disappointment. Had she not seen them together with her own eyes, she would not have believed it possible that Bourne could carry on a furtive love affair with a house guest like Rio, under the very nose of the girl who was, ostensibly, his wife.

Of course, was merely pursuing her old-time tactics. She was on hand each evening to greet him on his return from Lonerwater, and Denny detected a new note in their badinage. The woman talked of leaving as soon as the river opened; but Denny felt sure that this was only a subterfuge to disguise from her a situation which the experienced Rio imagined she was too obtuse to perceive.

"They both take me for a blind fool," she thought now, and in a momentary flash of spirit she burned to retaliate.

GIANTS INCREASE LEAD AS CHICAGO DROPS TWO

Commercial And Pastime Leagues Of Grate Lanes Reorganize For 1937-38

Two New Rules Concerning Handicaps and Forfeit Matches Adopted by 12-Team Commercial League; Amendments Are Made

The 12-team Commercial Handicap Bowling league of the Grate Recreation alleys reorganized for the 1937-38 season at a meeting last night, taking on four new teams to replace ones which dropped from the circuit at the end of last season.

The new teams joining the league are the Sinclairs, Harris Garage, Crescent Machine Shop of Leetonia, and Salem Polo club. Teams which re-affiliated with the circuit are Salem News, defending champion; Ohio Bell Telephone, Merit Shoes, Salem Engineering Co., Berg Bretzels of Leetonia, Junior Saxons, Grate Recreation and Smith Creamery.

Representatives of league teams decided to bowl on Thursday nights again this season, opening the season Sept. 23. The price of bowling was set at 65 cents. This includes five cents for the league "kitty" fund.

New officers elected for the league are H. I. Hine, president, and Ralph Phillips, secretary. Hine replaces Jess Hays as head man of the league, while Phillips takes over the job formerly held by Ted Detweiler.

Two new rules were adopted and several other regulations were amended at the meeting. One new rule provides for a new handicap system, based on the running averages rather than the team average compiled every three weeks, as was the set-up last season.

The new handicap rule is:

A 60 per cent handicap will be allowed, based on the difference between running team averages compiled weekly. Team averages shall be based on individual performance and shall be posted weekly. Each team captain shall figure his own handicap against his opponent for the night.

In the event of a new man with unestablished average, he shall take the low score of the opposing team as his score for the first night he bowls in the league. His actual score is to be taken to establish his average for future competition. New men with an established handicap shall enter under that average for handicapping.

The other new rule adopted concerned the penalty for teams failing to appear for their matches at scheduled time. This rule declares:

A forfeit shall be declared when a team fails to make its appearance 15 minutes after scheduled time. The foul line referee is ordered to ring a bell at 7:15 and 9:15 and teams not present at this time will forfeit all three games of their match. There must be four men present to constitute a team.

The most important of the amendments to rules provided for the formation of an executive committee to replace a board of arbitration composed of all team captains. The executive committee will be composed of three members, elected by team captains, and league officers.

Other amendments are: Changing the price of bowling from 50 to 65 cents; raising the secretary's salary from 50 cents to 65 cents a week; allowing team captains to notify either the league management, the league secretary or opposing team captain in case a postponement is desired and authorizing the league secretary to use league funds in purchasing necessary material for keeping records.

Other rules of last season's league were accepted as originally written. The entry fee for league teams will continue to be $5. The deadline for paying the fee was set as Thursday, Sept. 23, the opening night of the league.

In case teams wish to pay their entry fee before the deadline, they may do so at a meeting of team captains of the league at 7:30 Monday night at the Grate alleys. The rosters of all teams in the league are expected to be turned in at this meeting.

One new team was entered as the Pastime league of the Grate alleys also reorganized for another season last night.

The new entry in this circuit is Mullins Die Room. Other members of the league are Ohio Edison, defending champion; Famous Dairy, Kaufman Grocers, Loudon V-8's of Hanoverton, and Snell Auto Supply.

Last season's officers of the league were re-elected for another term. They are: President, C. A. Snell; secretary, Dean Beck.

The Pastime league will bowl on Wednesday nights, starting at 7 and ending at 9 each night. The league will open its season Sept. 22.

The price of bowling for the league was set at 70 cents, 10 cents of which goes into the "kitty." The entry fee was raised from $5 to $7 to provide for paying the league secretary $12 a season.

The league adopted a new rule making it possible for a team to roll second and third games of a match if not on time for the first game. The first game will be forfeited in such a case, the rule states.

A scheduled meeting of the Quaker City league last night was postponed when representatives of the Pastime league voted that they did not want to combine with the Quaker City circuit.

Six teams of the old Quaker City league were present for the meeting. These teams will meet again at 7:30 tonight at the Grate alleys, along with several other outfits which are seeking entrance into one of the Grate leagues.

It is hoped that the Quaker City circuit may be enlarged into a 12-team league.

CUBS RECEIVE NO REST WITH BEES FOR FOE

Boston Hands Bruins Two Defeats As Giants Split Games

By BILL BONI
There's no rest for the weary. Slapped down and around twice on the same afternoon by the rambunctious Bees, pushed two and a half games back of the Giants, the Cubs today faced two more games with Commodore McKee's scrappy crew.

Milt Shoffner, veteran rookie, was set to work against the Bruins in one game this afternoon. Behind him are Lou Fette and Jim Turner, the all-season sensations who should be rested by tomorrow.

That double defeat handed the Bruins yesterday—9-0 as the Bees slugged behind Johnny Lanning, 4-2 as they fielded smartly behind Danny MacFayden—did the Cubs no good whatsoever.

With the Giants splitting with Pittsburgh, it cost the Cubs a full game and tacked two more defeats on their list. The Chicagoans now have lost four games more than the league-leaders—and the "games lost" column is the one where the ball players themselves pay off, since a game lost is one that can't be made up.

The latest standings showed:

Club	Won	Lost	G.B.	T.P.
Giants	20	5	32	22
Cubs	19	5	2 1/2	19

The Giants came out of the only double-header of their last western invasion well enough. In the opener, which they won 12-2, they gave Carl Hubbell more runs than the silent stopwatch has had all season and enabled him to coast to the honor of being the first major league pitcher to win 19 games.

Even in the night-cap, which they lost 6-2, to Cy Blanton, they nicked the Pirate right hander for eight hits and might have pulled the game out of the fire in the eighth, when Hank Leiber, who had batted in four runs in the opener, grounded into a double play with the bases jammed.

The rest of the day's program was enough to leave pitchers strewn about in slap-happy carload lots. The Yankees led the parade with a 16-hit fireworks display good for a 17-5 victory over the Indians and leave the American league champions needing only today's double-header to erase Cleveland's last mathematical hope.

The Browns and Tigers also climbed into double figures, the Browns with an 11-4 shellacking of the Athletics, Detroit with an 11-6 clouting of the Senators.

Following the Bees' example, the Cardinals and Dodgers swept right through their bargain bills. St. Louis climbed into a third-place tie with the Pirates by beating the Phils, 9-8, in 14 innings, and then 1-0 in four and a half innings, while Brooklyn nosed out the Reds, 4-2, then swamped them, 11-2.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Chuck Dressen, aided by "Zinzinnati," probably can land with the Giants, if he wants to... the canning surprised one aircaster who remarked "—and Dressen was supposed to be a close friend of owner Povel Crosley".... well, he was—once... to a man, New Orleans sports writers deny the Tulane football team is made up of Wisconsin and Minnesota Swedes.

What's this about Maxie Rosenbloom getting himself lost in a wooded Detroit park while doing roadwork for the Jimmy Adamick bout?.... anyway, Maxie is doing the rest of his training at the race track.... Syracuse will abandon the traditional orange jerseys for dark blue and gold silk pants.... ought to be nifty.... San Antonio fans gave Manager Zack Taylor (ye old Dodger) four brand new auto tires, but held out on the rest of the car until Zack gets his team into the Texas league playoffs.... out on the coast, Stub Allison is yelling his head off because sports writers have made his California eleven a top-heavy favorite.

Three guesses as to who'll be the next manager to get the axe in the majors.... Mel Ott, doing a dandy job at third for the Giants, came to the club as a catcher.... Pitt has two experienced, triple threat fullbacks in Frank Patrick and Bill Stappulus.

Brian Bell, South Carolina's No. 1 story teller, now boss of the Ap on the coast, played golf with Ty Cobb the other day and asked Ty: "What's the matter with major league baseball these days?".... old Ty held a six-footer and came back: "Only trouble is, there are not enough major league ball players".... boy, what a mouthful!.... latest to be mentioned for Steve O'Neill's Cleveland spot is Larry Gilbert, for 17 years manager of the New Orleans Pelicans, (owned by Cleveland).

If Fred Apostoli licks Marcel Thil next week he'll claim the world's middleweight title, Freddie Steele and the New York boxing commission notwithstanding.... for the last two years all four regular tackles on the U. of Mississippi team have been married.... and this year's leading candidate—Frank (Bruiser) Kinard—reported wearing the old ball and chain.... get out the storm signals.... the Yanks have another DiMaggio on the way.... Fred of Kansas City, has entered a baseball school the Yanks will run there soon.

CRACK TROTTER BREAKS RECORD

Greyhound Establishes New Mark For Mile and Half

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 15.—The world's new champion mile-and-a-half trotter, five-year-old Greyhound, went through his training paces with unusual nerve today in preparation for an assault here Saturday on the world's mile trot record.

The gelding, owned by E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill., and handled by Sep Palin of Indianapolis, sped the mile-and-a-half route at the Indiana State fairground track yesterday in 3:02 1/2, shattering the record of 3:12 1/2, set by Rosalind at Syracuse, N. Y., recently.

Palin had intended to turn the grey loose on the mile distance, but a high wind made unwise such a race against time yesterday.

Greyhound, the Grand Circuit's "Gallop Ghost," will aim at the mile record of 1:56 1/2, set by Peter Manning at Lexington, Ky., in 1922.

COOPER RANKED OPEN FAVORITE

Western Tourney Friday Under Way At Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Sept. 15.—"Light-horse" Harry Cooper, Chicago golf star, rated as the favorite today to capture the Western Open tournament to be played at the Canterbury course Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Although the odds on the winner of the recent Canadian Open were 5 to 1, three other frequent money winners were counted as almost as dangerous. Heading the list was Ralph Guldahl, defending champion and National Open title holder. The other threats were Sam Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Jimmy Thomson, both long drivers and threats in any tournament.

Missing from the 72-hole medal play grid will be Walter Hagen, Western Open winner here in 1921 and 1932. The colorful "Haig" is on a world tour.

Billy Burke, Cleveland Country club pro, and Al Espinosa, Akron Portage pro, were given the best chances to come through for an Ohio delegation of some 50 players. Both know Canterbury's tricky layout and both are tournament golfers. Burke won the National Open in 1931 and Espinosa won the Ohio Open three of the last five years.

The schedule calls for 18 holes, Friday, 18 Saturday and 36 Sunday. Sneed and Thomson will be featured in a driving contest Friday morning.

4 TEAMS REMAIN IN TOURNAMENT

Scramble For National Baseball Title Narrows Down

DAYTON, Sept. 15.—The scramble for the National Amateur baseball title narrowed down to four games today.

Four teams were eliminated yesterday by way of double defeats. Kramer, Pa., drew a bye.

Cleveland, the defending champs, emerged as the team to beat as the race narrowed in the fifth round. Lefty Fred Newberry held Youngstown to seven hits and Cleveland scored 10 runs on 10 hits, winning 10-1.

The Dayton-Weirton, W. Va., game under lights drew the largest crowd of the series, 3,500 fans. Dayton scored the winning run in the eighth to take the game, 2 to 1.

Teams eliminated were Indianapolis, Youngstown, Birmingham and Edenboro. Cleveland meets Toledo today, New York opposes Weirton, and Dayton meets Waterbury.

SPEED KEYNOTE THIS YEAR FOR ST. MARY GAELS

Team Will Be Bulky, But Faster Than Madigan Squads of Past

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—St. Mary's Galloping Gaels, with Edward Patrick "Slip" Madigan cracking the coaching whip for his seventeenth season, bounce into the football scramble this season with a team slightly bulky but speedier than in the past.

The touring Irish from the west coast (at least two of the squad trace their ancestry to "Ould Sod" origin) shape up stronger than last year. Besides having one of the best collegiate field goal kickers in Quarterback Lou Ferry, the team has gained strength through the return of two brilliant prospects of other seasons, plus a sprinkling of strong talent from the 1936 freshman squad.

Ferry place-kicked the longest and sixth longest collegiate goals last year. Both were against Fordham, one for 54 yards, the other for 41.

Over in the Moraga valley, where the Gaels are hammering away at fundamentals and preparing for a schedule which starts with California and ends with Fordham in New York via a circuitous tour embracing Cuba, Madigan sizes it up this way:

"St. Mary's should be stronger this season. We lost some good boys but we've added a few outstanding players, too. The only position of undetermined strength is at center. None of the candidates has had varsity experience. We're not worrying much over the other places. The squad as a whole sizes up better than many another I've coached."

Milo Millicovich and Nick Katzmeyer, both 200-pounders, appear capable of filling the pivot post. The former is a sophomore; Katzmeyer was a freshman fullback star three years ago but dropped out of school. Ken Hardy, varsity reserve last year, bulks just as large and had the call in spring practice.

One of the bright spots results from the return of Jerry Bowd, 200-pound fullback who was injured in the first few minutes of the opening game last year. He was out for the season. The big fellow, a consistent 60-yard punter, may wind up at left half.

Although the Gaels will be outweighed by California's huge crew in the season opener, it would be necessary to stretch the imagination to classify them as lightweight. The line averages 198 1/2 pounds and the backfield 185 pounds.

The schedule: Sept. 25, California at Berkeley; Oct. 3, Gonzaga at San Francisco; Oct. 9, Nevada at San Francisco; Oct. 17, Loyola at Los Angeles; Oct. 23, Idaho at Stockton; Nov. 7, San Francisco at San Francisco; Nov. 14, Santa Clara at San Francisco; Nov. 20, Fordham at New York.

Pesek Ready To Defend Title Against Marshall

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 15.—John Pesek told the National Wrestling association today he was ready to defend his heavyweight title within 90 days against Everett Marshall and boasted he could pin the challenger twice within 30 minutes.

Pesek was named champion by the association at its convention here with the National Boxing association on the condition that he meet either Marshall or Bronko Nagurski in a championship match within six months.

The Nebraskan, through his manager, Al Haft of Columbus, rejected Nagurski as an opponent. He said: "He is a trust manipulated wrestler who cannot wrestle his way out of a paper bag."

Haft disclosed in a telegram to Commissioner Alfred Balin of Ohio, that the Quality club of Columbus had offered $10,000 for the Pesek-Marshall encounter during the week of Nov. 29.

Haft added that he had authorized the Ohio National bank of Columbus to post $5,000 that Pesek could pin Marshall twice within 30 minutes any time within the next 60 days.

At the concluding session today, the boxing association took up for final action a resolution asking Joe Louis to signify his willingness to defend his heavyweight title against Max Schmeling or have the throne declared vacant.

An unofficial poll of members at the opening of the meeting showed a majority of the members favoring this resolution:

Resolved that, Joe Louis be given 30 days within which to submit his willingness to defend his title against Schmeling at a time and place under such conditions as the national body shall direct, failing in which that his title shall be declared vacant."

RETAIN WOMEN'S SOFTBALL TITLE

Cleveland Girls Take Championship For Second Time

CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Mary Slick and her teammates took the women's national softball championship trophy back to Cleveland for the second consecutive year today, and the men's title moved to Detroit.

The Cleveland team last night retained its title, and became the first club in the national tournament's five-year history to repeat, by defeating Detroit, 7 to 1.

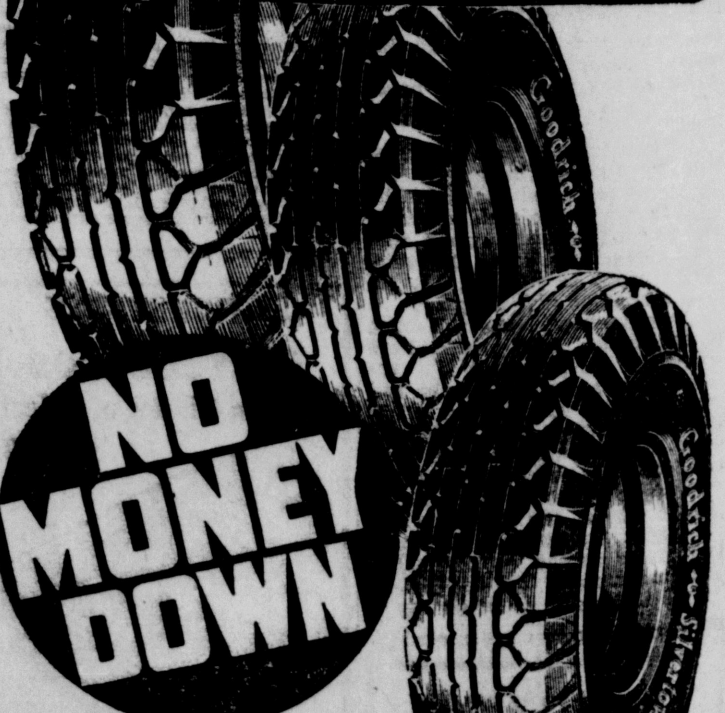

Detroit succeeded Rochester, N. Y., as men's titleholders as 23-year-old Eddie Figelski, a sheet-metal worker, turned in a three-hit pitching performance to defeat Sapulpa, Okla., 1 to 0.

The Cleveland team scored four shutouts, and did not yield a run until last night.

Tropical storms, their causes and formations, were explained by Lieut. Harry Goldy in a talk at the meeting of the Rotary club Tuesday at the Memorial building.

Goldy, who was in the naval service for 18 years, told the Rotarians that hurricanes, typhoons and tornadoes are the same kind of storms, the different terms being used in different waters. He said the south Atlantic is the only ocean free from such storms. He explained how barometers reveal the approach of storms, wind velocity and how the storms dissipate themselves.

"HANDS OFF!" SAYS JAPANESE ENVOY

Refuses Even Friendly Mediation in War With China

(By Associated Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—Japan will refuse to ignore even friendly mediation by the League of Nations in the Sino-Japanese conflict, the Japanese minister to Switzerland disclosed today.

The Japanese envoy, Elji Amau, told the Associated Press Japan would brook no interference in the far eastern crisis.

His statement came as the league pondered what, if any, action, to take on China's blistering indictment of Japanese "aggression" and her demand for a league denunciation of the Japanese military campaign.

"There is no question of Japan accepting a temporary league council seat in case she is invited to defend herself," the Japanese envoy declared decisively.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15.—Naval commanders of the United States and four other western powers demanded today that both Chinese and Japanese anti-aircraft gunners take immediate steps to spare the lives of "innocent noncombatants."

The urgent request of American Admiral Harry E. Yarnall and the other neutral naval commanders went forward while Chinese, in the face of wave after wave of Japanese attackers, stood fast on their new inland lines stretching 20 miles from Chapei to Liuh, north and west of international Shanghai.

Far to the north the whole might of 125,000 Japanese troops and their modern equipment was thrown into the long-bogged offensive against a 100-mile battle line. This campaign, aimed at subjugation of the rich province north of the Yellow river, holds the real military importance of the whole undeclared war.

WRITER VIEWS WAR'S FUTILITY

Great Shanghai Civic Center In Ruins After Bombardment

of destruction.

Great and gaping shell holes in most of the buildings have made rebuilding almost an impossibility. Even the $2,000,000 mex American style hospital, which was to have served as a model for all China, is as badly shattered as the Woosung, forts that stand grim and broken at the confluence of the Whangpoo and the Yangtze.

The stadium, built like Harvard's, is shell torn. The million dollar library is a ghost of its former self.

But it is in the great white granite museum, which housed China's century old relics, those from the Taiping rebellion, the Opium war and the Boxer uprising, that I saw the most tragic picture.

Scattered about the debris-strewn floors and shell-pierced galleries are the broken heads and the dismembered torsos of delicately carved gods, the arms and legs of papier-mache mannikins, stripped of their gorgeous raiment, the pathetic remains of Chinese classical dolls, puppets, statues.

To this tragic spectacle of war has been added the crimes of vandalism. So great has been the looting and desecration that it is hard to tell exactly what kind of articles were exhibited in the museum.

Hundreds of showcases and thousands of shelves have been stripped of everything.

Mingled incongruously with unexploded shells, hand grenades, steel helmets and the other ghastly tokens of war are broken symbols of peace—praying buddhas, sacred idols, Confucian philosophic writings.

Torn Portraits Seen

In the midst of these shattered relics are torn portraits of Sun Yat-Sen, founder of the Chinese republic, and of Chiang Kai-Shek, who inherited his mantle as the father of the revolution.

I saw a strange contrast to this picture of death and desolation in the recumbent, mud-covered forms of Japanese soldiers, so exhausted from the fierce duties of war that they sought the peace of sleep.

Outside the shell broken city hall, Japanese tanks, armored cars and artillery batteries stand row upon row.

Shells break overhead, airplanes drone, in the distance there is the relentless chatter of machine guns. Great spirals of smoke twist on the horizon. They are truly the funeral pyres of Shanghai's civic center.

I saw these things as I drove back toward the heart of Shanghai, deep in thought.

Suddenly a huge Japanese bomber swooped down over my automobile. The pilot leaned out; saw the American and Japanese flags whipping over the bonnet.

Then he zoomed up and into the sky.

(The mex dollar used in the above story is about 30 cents, American.)
